Reflections In A Bloodshot Eye

By ALEXANDER SOFRONI

Because I have performed the astounding feat of thus far evading both the flu and the mumps, I think I deserve the Congressional Medal of Honor or the Purple Heart or, anyway, a free box of cough drops.

Those flowery pseudo-aesthetic perfume ads have reached the height of the ridiculous. The copy writers who dream them up are either having a lot of fun or they're stark, raving mad. "Sultry, heady, lid-lowering," my foot!

Why doesn't Walter Winchell change his trade and take up figure skating or dress designing or, better still, follow the example set by Harpo Marx.

A citation of some sort should be given to Mae West. The censors won't allow her to say anything with even a hint of ribaldry in it, so she takes a dead, colorless word like "technicality," slings it around in her esophagus, and makes it sound like something sizzingly wicked. Brother, that's art.

Let's hope that 1944 will be a year of victory for our allies and the Dodgers, too.

I suppose it's sacrilegious to say it, but although I enjoyed "Winged Victory," I think it is overrated.

For a good laugh read "Lil'Abner's" subtly satirical jabs at America's sweetheart, Frankie Sinatra. That is by far the best comic strip in circulation.

Leap Year theoretically started only a few days ago, but actually it's been going on where it supposedly left off last Leap Year.

I'll close by quoting the golden rule, a la Willie Howard. "Do unto others before they do unto you."

Bond Drive Wins Praise

This is the result of the furious bond buying contest between homerooms of our school that has been going on for many, many weeks: The grand total over

Port Profile

Our 17-year old beauty, Katy Ehnat, was born in Port Washington on August 28, 1926. She's 5' 4 1/2" tall.

Her pet expression, as you are probably familiar with, is "How are ya?"

Some of her favorites are: Dickie Bohn, dancing (Lindy), popcorn, Gary Cooper, movies (?), potatoe chips, sewing, nail polish, slacks and hikes.

Pet peeve: Catty girls (???) and Frank Sinatra.

Favorite Subject—espanol
Worst subject—Chemistry.
Future—undecided (aren't we all?)

Happiest moment of her life was $20,000. Mr. Merrill has expressed his appreciation of the good work done by students in this drive.

when she met Dick Bohn!

Katy's outstanding characteristic is her baby talk. (Sounds good on her).

She likes boys who smoke pipes. Some of her accomplishments are—traffic squad (usually out in front of Mr. Kezar's).

Secretary of class, and is a member of the La Ter Tulia.
