enth year she added Celerity as one of her activities, became a reporter on the Port Weekly, secretary of CIO, and vice-president of the Biology Club. While a senior, Heather has become Copy Editor of the Port Weekly. Just recently she attended the Columbia Scholastic Press Conference as a representative from Port High. Also in the field of journalism, she worked on the Port Light this year. Probably her most important achievement is becoming a member of Circle. To do this, Heather has maintained a 1.50 average, and stands fourteenth in her class.

Sportswise, Heather has been active in many athletic fields, her favorite sports being basketball and tennis.

Outside school, Heather is often to be found in the Port Port Washington Public Library, where she has a part time job. Her hobbies include stamp collecting, reading, and playing the piano. She is one of our most widely travelled students, having lived and toured in Europe and Canada.

As to her future plans, Heather is undecided between an English education and one of the colleges along the eastern coast, either Cornell, Radcliffe, or Swarthmore. While in college she expects to major in economics and minor in French. We hope that Heather will get all her wishes, because besides being a top student, she is an all-round terrific person.

campaign platform based on the suggestions received from the student body. The numerous suggestions are being analyzed, and the final platform will be put forth only when they are certain that all the desires of the students have been considered.

"We realize that our opposition has at this time formulated and presented for printing a definite platform of action. This appears outwardly rather lazy, but there is a saying that 'Fools rush in where angels fear to tread.' I feel that my candidate has recognized a number of wants of the students and weak points of our council procedures. A flexible platform which will be subject to final revision when all student recommendations have been analyzed has been established. Basically it covers three fields:

"Athletics: A number of suggestions have come in for the starting of wrestling, rifle, and other lesser team sports. Investigation has shown that it is quite conceivable that both of the aims could be easily achieved. Further considerations is being given to other activities such as
