ities is her position as president of Red Domino. Since her entrance into high school, Ann has made dramatics one of her major activities. As a sophomore she was understudy for the sophomore play, and she held the lead in the spring play "Last Stop." During that year she was also president of Junior Red Domino. In her junior year she became the secretary of Red Domino and held one of the leads in "Good-Bye My Fancy." This year she again held a major role in the spring play, "Arsenic and Old Lace," as one of the charming old Brewster sisters. At present Ann is busy directing a one act play, "Spirals," to be presented later this year in assembly.

Sportswise Ann has also been more active than the average student. She has been on the class teams for hockey, softball, volleyball, and basketball. During her three years at Port she has also been on the J.V. volleyball team and the varsity softball. In addition she has been an active participant in all modern dance affairs.

Ann is a member of Clio, Celerity, Circle, Choir, and Chorus. During her past years at Port she has worked hard on the carnivals presented in the spring and has also been on the Port Light staff.

Outside school she takes piano lessons and is active in charity work. Her hobbies include reading, writing, and all sports, especially bowling.

Ann hopes to attend either Middlebury or Colby College next year, and plans to major in dramatics.

May 18-21 Set For "Long Gray Line"

A motion picture that promises to be as rich and as exciting as "From Here to Eternity" and "The Caine Mutiny" will be on the Beacon Theatre's Cinemascope screen from May 18-21. It is four-time Academy Award-winner John Ford's "The Long Gray Line," with a powerful starring cast headed by Tyrone Power and Maureen O'Hara. "The Long Gray Line" reportedly is the story of all America, although its setting is West Point and its principal figure a sergeant there who devoted his lifetime to shaping into men the cadets who marched from the Academy to shape our times. Starred with Power and Miss O'Hara are Robert Francis, Donald Crisp, Ward Bond, Betsy Palmer, and Phil Carey.

"The Long Gray Line" is based on Sergeant Marty Maher's book "Bringing Up The Brass" in which he describes his experiences as athletic trainer, friend, and second father to 10,000 cadets. Under Ford's direction, "The Long Gray Line" is a magnificent story of West Point, which at first bewildered, then befriended, and finally honored a pugnacious young immigrant whose life became centered on the Academy and on the Corps of Cadets.

Tyrone Power tops a spectacular lifetime of acting with his starring portrayal of Sergeant Maher in "The Long Gray Line" which puts him on the screen in almost every one of its 365 true-life scenes. Miss O'Hara stars with Power as his bride, the girl who shares with him the affections of the boys he teaches to be men.

A magnificent co-starring cast helps to unfold the big story. Robert Francis plays a second generation cadet; Donald Crisp plays the colorful Sergeant Maher's equally colorful Irish father. Betsy Palmer makes her debut as the young school teacher who tutors a scholastically backward West Point athlete.

By special permission of the White House, President Dwight D. Eisenhower also is portrayed in "The Long Gray Line," in a dramatic re-enactment of his years at West Point. The role is taken by Harry Carey, Jr., who closely resembles Mr. Eisenhower as a young man.
