

The Schrieber Times

Home of the Whipper, Happy Day, 1992

Volume XIII, No. 666

Senior Privileges Revoked Off-Campus Privileges Suspended due to Extensive Consumption of Alcohol During Day-time Party

by S. Beelzebub

The administration has officially ended senior off-campus privileges as a result of a recent party held during school hours on Bar Beach Road. The estimated 150 students at the party were consuming large quantities of alcohol, and as a result of a recent School Board decision stemming from a previous Bogart Avenue party, the right of upperclassmen to leave school grounds was revoked.

According to Assistant Principal Alphonse Campbell, "The students were warned. If they're not going to be able to handle the responsibility of going off-campus, then it would be inappropriate for us to let the practice continue." According to Mr. Campbell, the privileges are to be revoked as of Monday, April 6. Any student caught off-campus after that period will be suspended. Principal Sid Barish stated, "The revocation is absolute. Students were asked to refrain from alcohol parties during school." When asked how this action will affect off-campus privileges in the future, Dr. Barish responded, "There's nothing to make me think that next year's seniors will be any better. It's just too bad that seniors will have to remain on campus forever."

The party took place on Friday, March 27. Students gathered in and around the house, and appeared to consume massive volumes of alcoholic beverages. Although one student professed that the "kegs were full of root beer," the administration felt differently. The party began at 8:30 a.m. that morning and lasted until the administration arrived at 11:45 a.m. The administration learned of the party through an inside source, an unidentified narcotics agent, or "narc," who is presently enrolled at Schreiber. Upon learning of the party, the administration responded by immediately rushing to the student's house and removing the keg. Minutes after the keg was taken, students voluntarily dispersed.

Sixty-five students received two days of after-school detention as a result of the party. Although the administration was unable to confirm any of the students' attendance at the party, one administration arrived at the house; since it appeared that the student was completely unaware of any of the day's events and did not condone the party, he only received three days of detention.

The administration exercised its right to remove senior off-campus privileges following a brief meeting on Friday afternoon. Administrators then held a closed-door "star chamber," where the selected students received their punishments.

In order to enforce the new regulation, the administration has hired two more security guards. These truant police will patrol the usual student hangouts: G & J's, Carnel's, and B.K. In addition, the administration is negotiating a contract whereby the Port Washington Police will be on the lookout for high-school age students all around town. One officer remarked, "What you're looking at is your basic teen curfew—during the school days." According to Dr. Barish, a padlock will be placed on the Monfort parking lot after 8:30 a.m. "This should keep students from trying to flee the town," he schedule, much like that at Weber Junior High. Students will be required to take seven classes and will have one lunch period and a designated study time, during which they will be required to sign in and remain seated.

Andy Bronstein—an example of alcohol's handiwork.

In a Schrieber Times survey, 97.3 percent of Schrieber students stated that they were against the proposed changes. One student who voted in favor of the changes exclaimed, "Hey I'm graduating anyway." 74 percent of the students surveyed supported the changes. One parent remarked, "Students these days, they're just too irresponsible. They don't deserve to have these privileges. In my day, on weekends we stayed inside and listened to the radio. There was no beer; we drank milk and ate cookies, and if we were lucky we saw a show at the cinema. We were bored and we were tired, but we liked it!" Another parent commented, "I can't believe the students drink alcohol. I have no idea where they could have picked up such evil habits! It must be in that rock 'n' roll music." One Schrieber teacher, who asked not to be identified, stated, "It's all been downhill since they shot JFK."

A bathroom stash of "Milwaukee's Beast"—a good, cheap beer.

tor was quoted as saying, "It's doesn't matter whether they were all there or not. By punishing all of the students who we feel could have gone, we're sure to catch at least some of the offenders."

The student at whose house the party was held stated, "I was not involved." This student was not present when the stated.

In order to discourage students from being idle and restless during their mandatory four-year stay in the school building, the Guidance Department is fervently working on revising modular scheduling. The mod system will be replaced by a traditional nine-period

RUMORS

LIES

Satan Escapes
From Hell
Page 26

Vanilla Ice
is Cool
Page 5

pages 9-12

Blain Outsmarted!!

Battle of the Bands is Suspended

Barish Slams Schreiber Tradition over Slam Dancing

by I. P. Freely

The Schreiber Administration announced on Monday, March 30 that the Battle of the Bands event would be indefinitely suspended as a result of the disruptions at this year's Battle. Principal Sid Barish cited several incidents of "moshing" and student fighting as the rationale for the suspension.

Dr. Barish explained the suspension of the Battle, saying, "The Battle this year was just too dangerous. We cannot have students throwing themselves into each other at a school event. They can dance like that at home, or at least when we aren't looking. Show some class."

As a result of the moshing, three students were injured and two spent the night in the hospital. The third student, whose name was withheld by the administration, checked into a drug rehabilitation center at the night's conclusion.

Furthermore, the administration authorized a committee of teachers, parents, and students to examine violence at the Battle. The fifteen-person committee plans to conduct surveys on a state and local level and will examine other relevant studies from other schools. "You'd be surprised by how much information there is around," commented Dr. Barish. The committee plans to meet bimonthly and anticipates a resolution as early as 1995.

"Until then," stated Dr. Barish. "We're not going to be able to have a battle."

The Student Government did not appear to be concerned about the news. Co-advisor Amy Prochaska stated, "The Battle of the Bands is only one G.O. event. I'm sure many new programs will rise up to take its place."

The G.O. has already envisioned a new event to replace the Battle. President senior Tim Browne stated, "Schreiber students need an outlet for their musical talent. In place of the Battle, we plan to hold a musical Polka Fest. Students will be able to demonstrate their talents playing popular polka pieces on the accordion, the glockenspiel, and the English Horn. I'm sure that all the students will really stack up behind it, and besides, I'm graduating."

Dr. Barish expressed that while he is not against Battles in the future, the trends in music has really degenerated, which may have led to the disruptions. He stated, "Metallica, Faster Pussycat, Gun's 'N Roses? That's not real music. What ever happened to Anthrax, Megadeth, and Suicidal Tendencies? It's this fake metal that's been causing the moshing; these kids are slam-dancing out of a suppressed boredom. If we got a little more speed metal and a little less of this 95.5 pop junk, then maybe we'd really have an event!"

The reactions of the band members to the news differed. Autumn Pool Tribe vocalist Greg Kirmser was furious. He stated, "God darn! It's not fair. But, hey, I expected it. After all, it's all politics anyway." However, Breadhammer vocalist Jason Wright responded, "Yeah ... Polka Fest. I'm in." And Suckafish drummer Peter Fishman added, "The Polka Fest is all about rock 'n' roll, and so is Suckafish." While Desolation Angels vocalist James Berroya was in favor of the Polka Fest, he had some reservations: "Chances are that we'll get disqualified from this as well. Those polka dancers can get downright vicious."

Another senior added, "The Battle this year was OK, but I was a little disappointed with the lack of parties following the event. Maybe next year's polka will be different."

The administration's statement also cited several minor reasons for the suspension of the Battle: "We believe that the guidelines for the Battle are discriminatory. Students with more musical talent are clearly given preference in performing than students with less. We would like that in the future all prize money be awarded on an equal basis, regardless of the bands' individual performances."

Student Government Treasurer senior Peter Han stated that suggestions for future Battles include a steel cage to surround each Band and steel chains for the audience. "If this is what it takes, there will be real heavy metal at Schreiber." He added, "And besides, I'm graduating."

Students Sick of Being S.A.F.E.

by Lew Siffer

In recent years, America has seen its environmental consciousness grow to the point that Schreiber students formed SAFE (Student Activists For the Environment); however, some students have gotten fed up with the "white paper" trash cans around the school. They've formed a rival organization: Students Together to F[oul] Up The Environment (STFUTE). The group, the name of which is pronounced "Stuh-FUH-tee," has engaged in various counter-conservationist tactics. According to founder and president senior Brett Bernstein, "I'm sick of this 'save-the-dolphins' crap. Who are these Greenpeace commies anyway? If I want to pay less for tuna that is not certified 'dolphin-safe,' I have that right. In fact, I want Flipper for dinner. For lunch, too. And fines for litter?! Don't get me started."

The organization's first event, which took place at the close of last year, involved the now-closed Port Washington landfill. Bernstein and his cohorts brought shovels to the landfill and dug it up, liberating tons of noxious hydrogen sulfide gas. Commented adviser and social studies teacher Harry Andersen, who had resigned from his advisorship of SAFE, "Clean air—fiddledeeflee! In my day, factories belched clouds of smoke into the air right next to your house until you choked on it and couldn't breathe. Your lungs got filled with tar, and you liked it!"

Other activities of the club included sinking the famous garbage barge, still fully laden, dumping lead and other heavy metals into water reservoirs, throwing the remains of their lunches into the white paper trash can, releasing radiation from the Shoreham nuclear power plant, torturing SAFE president junior Chelsea Miller, and sabotaging Schreiber's campus clean-up day. STFUTE has also taken two field trips. The first was to the Exxon building in New York City, where members met the corporation's president and Valdez captain Joe Hazelwood. Bernstein said, "It's a dream come true. Joe inspired me to form the club. He should run for President." The second trip was to Oregon, where the club's members cut down trees in forests in which the endangered grey spotted owl lives. Sophomore Jon Bass declared, "This was the most exciting trip I've ever been on. The buzz of the saw, the screech of the owl ..."

For the big Earth Day celebration on April 21, the club plans to remove all of the paper bags from supermarkets across Long Island, leaving only non-biodegradable plastic sacks.

Nanook Says No Over Snow

by Salman Rushdie

While vacationing in Hawaii, Superintendent of Schools William Heebink decreed that Schreiber High School will hold two extra days of classes in June due to the multiple false fire alarms set off on Thursday, March 19 and Monday, March 23. Due to the time spent outdoors, Dr. Heebink said, students "missed much valuable class time on those two infamous days," and therefore must make up that time. He cited the "immature behavior of Schreiber's students" as the key factor in his decision.

Principal Sid Barish stated, "I think the reason for the [pulling of the] fire alarms was the fact that school remained in session even though there had been a great deal of snowfall on each day." One freshman, who requested that his name be withheld, agreed, "Heebink really should have given us a snow day. That's why I threw a snowball at Barish."

Dr. Heebink's secretary reported numerous angry telephone calls by students objecting to the lack of a snow day. She said that she was assailed with foul language twice. This reporter witnessed one junior making such a phone call. His words were: "Tell Bill that he can pick my nose for making us come to school."

Dr. Heebink formerly worked as a school superintendent in northern Minnesota. Betty Sue Jones, a home economics teacher from Dr. Heebink's old district, said that snowfall in her hometown averages "at least two feet every day." This is probably why Port Washington has not had a single snow day during Heebink's six-year tenure.

Schreiber iconoclast Harry Andersen commented, "Live for yourself, there is no one else more worth living for. Begging hands and bleeding hearts will only cry out for more. Rush is great. So are snow days. Zeppelin rules. I love shrubberies and The Schreiber Times. Morton Downey Junior for President."

Ode to a Toad

Ode to a toad
On the nose of a wave
It's getting near dark
I really should shave
Skin a cat or kick a pup
I like to drink and get fouled up
Toads are stupid and so are you
You're dumb and ugly and have no clue
Leave me alone go to hell
Hello, goodbye, farewell, you smell

— No Chivas

Morton Downey
Jr. For President!

Music of Early 80s Will Have Recognition Day

by Torand Snow Dog

The Schreiber Administration recently recognized the influence and importance of early 1980s music and decided to hold a transdisciplinary day to bring out the best of that era. The event, which will take place in early May, will be called Early 1980s Music Appreciation Day, and will follow in the tradition of Civil War Day and Multicultural Day.

The day will include assemblies in both the morning and afternoon, and workshops throughout the day. The morning assembly will feature Andrew Ridgley, the "other guy" from Wham. Ridgley will speak about his days in the legendary band, talk about how it was to be a star in the early 80s, and also perform some Wham! classics. The second performer of the day will be none other than the band Kid Video. Though defunct, the band has agreed to come together for this special day, commenting: "Continuing the legacy of [early 80s music] is important enough for us to regroup."

The workshops will include a music video room, where videos of songs by bands such as Culture Club, Duran Duran, and Aha. A second workshop will feature the film Samantha Fox: On Stage and Behind Stage. The third workshop will actually show a debate over which had a greater influence: Early 80s music in the United States or European early 80s music.

Dr. Barish commented on his decision to hold this eventful day, "The early 80s must not be forgotten! It was a very lively time period, one which helped to form the person who I am now. The younger generation must be reminded of the sheer goodness that this music represents."

Senior Ed Chin confronted Dr. Barish, voicing his belief that the consideration of this event is a mistake and will lead to an excessive amount of cutting and very little appreciation. Dr. Barish replied by asking Chin if he noticed any excessive cutting in past transdisciplinary days. Chin replied, "Was I here last year?" Dr. Barish pointed out the fact that Schreiber students as a whole are shockingly prone to ignoring the true meaning of early 80s music. He admitted that appreciation days devoted to this topic have not yet caught on in Long Island schools, but asserted that they have become very popular in the continental U.S. Chin's agreement with this reasoning was evident in his response: "O, on the continent ..."

Your Birthday, 1992
Volume XIII, No. 666
Hamburger High School
Discoland, New York 11050

ABSOLUT EDITORS:

Dee Dee Engel Hair Kessler

BARELY MANAGING:

Peanut Butter Juceam

SENIOR CONSULTING EDITOR:

Satan Shodell

DIRTY DEEDS DONE DIRT CHEAP:

No Chivas Eisner

NUWZ:

Axl Altman Hell-Raiser Blum

ASIAN EDITOR:

Right Said Fred Chin
Wake me up Before You Goh

SPECIAL NEEDS AND HORSES:

Karen Knebworth

DONUT EDITORS:

Butts Sportstein
Gold-Tooth Willy

PHOTOGRAPHY EDITOR:

Liz "Who?" Tomkiewicz

LAY EDITOR:

Flobena Conis

MAKIN' COPY:

Hashish Parasharami

WABBITS:

Lenny Misita

STRANGE NOISES:

Killer Miller

OHIO STATE:

Andy Fleishmann

DIRTY BUSINESS:

Gary Rapp

STAFF (BESIDES SATAN):

- Flawless Chen
- U2 Rosenberg
- Twiggy Teeger
- Whatever Gimbel
- Supertwinkie Shin
- Naughty Nelson

Published at random by the student body of Paul D. Schreiber High School. Letters to the editor should not be addressed to The Schreiber Times unless they are laudatory. No criticism will be accepted under any circumstances. The editors reserve the right to beat up anybody they don't like. All letters must be signed by the author, even if this means making up a name.

We don't have a copyright for this text because we know you won't want to copy it anyway. That is, unless you are severely deranged. If this is the case, please call us for a job interview at 1-900-I-LOVE-HORSEFLIES.

Sidney Barish, Ed.D., PRINCIPAL DETECTIVE
Janet Evans, HAIR ADVISOR
The Schreiber Times is great.

Editors Expose All

Look for the new Schreiber Times Swimsuit Issue

Westinghouse Competition Marred by Abuse of Birth Control Pills

by Jove I. Gottit

Senior Oren Eisner received a disturbing letter on Monday, March 21 from the Westinghouse Lighting Company, the sponsor of the prestigious Westinghouse Science talent Search. Eisner, who was recently named as one in a select group of forty finalists in the annual contest, was informed that he had failed the mandatory drug test and that his finalist status was to be "immediately revoked." The letter further stated that Eisner owed the large corporation approximately $2000 for the trip that Westinghouse sponsored to Washington D.C., our nation's capital. As they wrote, "We at the Westinghouse Corporation do not condone nor sponsor trips to Washington, D.C. for dirtbags."

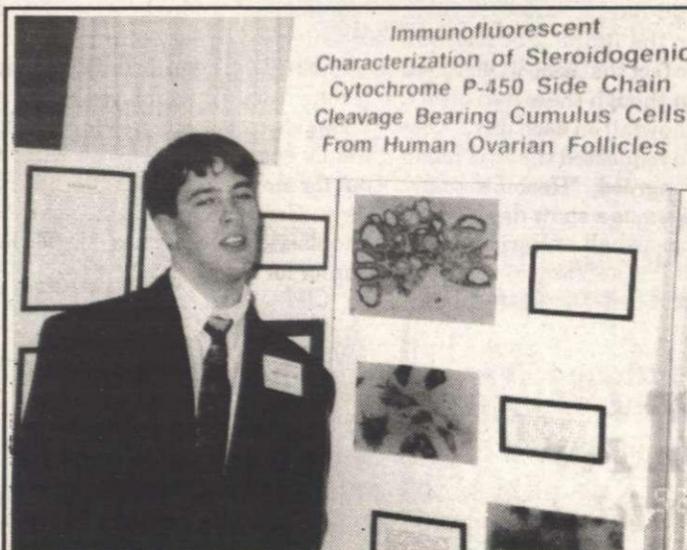

When interviewed on the matter, Eisner categorically denied all allegations, claiming that his failure of the test was due to his recent use of birth control pills. Eisner stated, "I believe that the dangers of unplanned teenage pregnancy greatly outweigh the embarrassment of failing a little drug test," continuing, "I knew that the Olympic rules were stringent, but this is just pure, unadulterated [bovine excrement]." Eisner stated early on March 22 that he would fight his disqualification to the end, but recent discoveries by school principal and distinguished detective Sid Barish seem to have all but destroyed Eisner's chances of self-redemption.

Shortly after receiving news of Eisner's disqualification, Dr. Barish decided to further investigate the matter to determine if Westinghouse's accusations held any validity. Barish took a big set of pliers (not those wimpy ones that are used to cut wire) and cut through Eisner's lock, finding startling news inside the locker: five pounds of marijuana, as well as a stolen calculator from the physics department. When interviewed, Barish commented, "The possession and use of illegal narcotics on school grounds is wrong; Oren will receive several days of after-school detention, and maybe even an in-school suspension. But the possession and use of an illegally obtained physics calculator is just inexcusable; I am afraid that we must turn Eisner over to the police for this, and urge them to consider capital punishment."

Physics teacher Jim Lyman also commented on the matter, stating, "Words can not express my disappointment in Oren. He should furthermore consider himself lucky that I didn't get to that scrawny, little punk first, or I probably would have killed him in that berserker rage that I have been known to experience." Lyman concluded the interview by making scary references to a new AK-47 that he built after hearing of Eisner's crime, saying, "I just can't wait to hear about the next thief."

News has recently surfaced that

Immunofluorescent Characterization of Steroidogenic Cytochrome P-450 Side Chain Cleavage Bearing Cumulus Cells From Human Ovarian Follicles

Oren Eisner, drugged with Birth Control pills.

Schreiber's other Westinghouse finalist, senior Adam Healey passed his test and is eligible for the $1000 scholarship. Dr. Barish stated, "This may be true, but let's just hope that he doesn't have any calculators." Healey had no comment on the matter, but he did say that he could give me a great price on a Casio Model fx-82D with a block of wood on its back.

The National Sports Daily (R.I.P.)

April f'n fools day, ya moron

Varsity Auto Racing: DiPietro Out; Miller In

by Jacques Strap

In a move that surprised only math teacher Ernie Meyer, Schreiber Athletic Director Thomas Romeo formally dismissed math teacher Vincent DiPietro as coach of the Varsity Auto Racing team. DiPietro's replacement, according to Dr. Romeo, is Neil Miller, Schreiber's new Driver Education teacher. The Schreiber Times has received word from two sources that the reasons for DiPietro's firing are twofold: first, his insistence upon painting every car an iridescent yellow; second, DiPietro alluded to his desires to move on to bigger and better things, like coaching the Freshman Girls' Badminton squad.

Miller, a former all-American field hockey star at Great Neck North High School, earned four varsity letters in his time on North's Nintendo team. He further went on to win three NCAA Division I individual bocce ball championships at Campbell University in North Carolina. Miller also led the Fighting Camels to the NCAA Loogie Hawking team championship in his senior year and worked in the [arm] pit of NASCAR champion Cole Trickle.

"My first goal," said Miller, "is to get everyone in the pit crew playing Twister. The actual races are the pits, but I could sure go for an all-you-can-eat at Taco Bell after it's all over. I promise that the Viking pit crews will be the best in Osawatomie, Kansas. Oh, hell, the best in the entire universe! I can change tires with the best of them; just give me two weeks and a whole load of ball-bearings and I'll have Sid [Barish] wheeling like a pro."

Along with Dr. Barish, social studies and Jeopardy legend John "thanking you" Cahill and senior Beth Dorgan are expected to instigate moshing in the trenches.

Miller also expressed a desire to get a set of "those really cool 'I'm Too Sexy' see-through bikini thongs [We guess he meant jumpsuits]" for the crew. Publicly, Dr. Barish said that there is no money in the current budget for jumpsuits, but off the record, he stated that he hopes to have the suits designed "by the same guy who does Don King's hairdo."

Schreiber English department chairman John Broza commented that he is "in orbit" watching some of his former and present students compete in races at Daytona and at the upcoming 24 hours of LeMans breathing. Broza added, "I would like to thank the team members for coming and going."

The team's first race is the New York Grand Prix, held in May in downtown Manhattan. It features the treacherous Central Park run and even a stint through the infamous Blue Oyster Club. According to Miller, the starting lineup has not been sent into Section Eight officials, but he expects to bring one senior and two juniors to race and up to eighteen seniors, juniors, and sophomores to work the pit. Assistant Principal Carmine Matina will attempt the half-court shot, while senior Oren Eisner runs the honorary beverage stand donated by Nick Kass. Chemistry expert A. Paul Kusky suggested a car model resembling that in The Flintstones. Bio teacher Jim "Short Shorts" Jones has volunteered to do the running. Junior Andy Kass, speaking out of Kasper's Krotch, has provided this reporter with the starting drivers' names. Team captain junior Tony "Check Your Shorts" Ioanna will drive the Viking-G+J Brothers Deli stock car, currently being built by Rocko Noff's Auto Shop Class. Sammie "The Bull" Nelson is scheduled to pilot Schreiber's entry, The Earnard Mobile, in the Indy car series. "I'm not worthy!" exclaimed Nelson upon hearing the news of his starting position. "Oh, by the way, 'Hi, Mom!' and 'Exsqueeze me.'"

The third driver, participating in the demolition derby, will be senior Peff "Infiniti to zero in under 5.1 seconds" Jinsky. Jinsky has prior experience in totalling cars, and Miller finds such experience an invaluable asset. "Most high school students have never really been in a decent fender-bender," said Miller. "Peff tells me that he's totaled at least twenty cars." Miller added that Jinsky will be eligible to reapply for his license in the year 2010.

Unbeknownst to Jinsky, he will be followed by Young Assassin's Club founder and president Dave Wadler for the entire race. Faculty advisor James "the man who built a lake" Lyman Jr. stated, "We hope to nail Jinsky within 'at'dt' minutes after the race begins. That's the way the Lymans do it." Senior Mike Johanson will serve as the high-speed right curve specialist. Secret ninja Lewis Shin, wanted in sixteen states for entrail manging, was overheard remarking, "This crime has been approved by the American Dental Association." Lyman continued, "We make holes in Peff!" New student and resident mathematical Einstein, senior Mike Ertel, has devised a formula to catch up to Jinsky's car. With his renowned Ertel-mobile, Mike claims, "After we catch him, he'll be caught. Ho Ho Ho." Whatever, Mike.

Coach Miller expects stiff competition to come from defending Suffolk champion Schem High School because Ertel moved here from that town. "Also, they drink milk!" said a nervous Miller. He went on to warn about the potential danger of the team becoming overconfident: "When a team becomes overconfident, they become complacent and the effort dwindles. I remember the NCAA Division Loogie Hawking Competition in 1980. We were down by a goober and a half and then I came up. I cranked back deep down into my lungs for that extra long one, and whamo, it shot across the floor and landed on this guy Blinsky's face." Science research teacher Judy "Moose" Ferris commented, "This racing team is a great idea. If they want, they can borrow my Vette—Not!! Well, maybe, so long as [Jinsky] doesn't drive it. By the way, did I mention that Adam Healey was a Westinghouse finalist?"

Alternate driver junior Jeni Blum eagerly anticipates the racing season: "I can't wait to nail Jinsky's butt to the pavement in my first 23-car pileup!" The fact that being on the team permits students to drive to and from races without a driver's license has made it a popular athletic endeavor. "When I heard about that, I ran right out of class and hurled," professed junior Archis Parasharami, who is 373 days away from getting his license.

—Shooting From The Butt ...—

Official Butts Sportstein Betting Line (From the Home Office).....Peoria, Illinois

Campbell University wins the 1993 Men's Division I NCAA Basketball Championships.....	2-1
Duke doesn't win the 1992 Men's Division I NCAA Basketball Championships.....	EVEN
Dick Vitale has a conniption screaming "Shaquille BABY!!!" while the aforementioned Blue Devils lose, even though LSU is not in the game and Vitale is not announcing it on TV (thank god).....	6-5
The San Jose Sharks win the Stanely Cup.....	3-1
The New York Rangers make it past the first round of the playoffs.....	506-1
There actually are NHL playoffs.....	Infinity-1
Anyone watches the World League.....	666-1
Mike Tyson serves his time, gets released, and beats Larry Holmes to regain the World Heavywight Championship belts.....	10-1
The aforementioned fight lasts more then 91 seconds.....	7-5
Oh, by the way, Holmes beats Evander "My brother got shot, not me" Holyfield.....	9-5
George Foreman eats a small child by mistake one day.....	25-7
Nick Kessler cuts his hair.....	Not even worth giving odds on because it's not going to happen
English Teacher (and much loved Schreiber Times Advisor) Janet Evans is really a second cousin to the Chia Pet.....	1-Infinity
The above mentioned Evans changes her first name to Louie.....	4-8
St. John's Basketball Coach Louie Carnesecca wears a jacket and tie to games next year.....	8-7
Mock Trial Guru Edward Edwards [Edward (1 + s)] decides that instead of "Style! Style! Style!" or "Float Like a Butterfly", the next Mock Trial theme will be the lyrics from the ACDC classic "Big Balls".....	1-2

*This column was NOT printed on recycled paper*